

Wipes Clog Pipes!

Many household cleaning products are labeled and marketed as “flushable” but that doesn’t mean it’s a good idea to flush them down the toilet. These items include:

- disinfecting wipes • baby wipes • mop refills
- paper towels • towelettes

Cloth-like products don’t dissolve once they are flushed; they clog private pipes and cause expensive and time consuming repairs for homeowners. On a larger scale, these products also get tangled up and stuck in public sewer pipes and pump station equipment leading to unpleasant sewer backups. Save yourself and your wastewater utility from a pain in the drain—put wipes, rags and towels in the trash, not the toilet.

Just because it will go down the toilet, doesn’t mean it should.
